

Get Talking About Opportunity

EdTech creates opportunities for world language learners

Students with strong world language skills can acquire a deeper understanding and appreciation of other cultures and engage more confidently with peers from different backgrounds.

While teachers, curriculum directors, superintendents, and principals have the zeal to instruct students in multiple languages, the resources aren't always available to support that effort.

A recent eBook explored how EdTech world language solutions give students more opportunities to study and support teachers' curriculum objectives.

Expands access. Students can sign on to language lessons outside the classroom as part of a blended learning approach. A U.S. Department of Education report highlighted how technology accelerates, amplifies, and expands the impact of effective teaching.

Delivers clear benefits. The American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages notes that world language learning improves cognitive abilities, deepens cultural awareness, creates more opportunities to pursue college studies, and enhances employment prospects.

Increases chances to speak. According to a Spanish teacher with extensive EdTech experience, "... the Rosetta Stone® program may provide more opportunities for students to practice speaking the language than they might have in a traditional classroom setting."

Empowers teachers. The ability to individualize instruction helps teachers reach and teach every student according to their needs and accelerate their learning.
