

Rosetta Stone Live Tutoring

Rosetta Stone Live Tutoring keeps the conversation real.

For employees learning a language, it's a big leap from lessons to the real world. Rosetta Stone Live Tutoring sessions give learners the chance to practice conversation with native speakers—and to pick sessions that fit their own schedules.

Tutoring that fits employees' lifestyles

Live Tutoring lets employees hone speaking and listening skills they'll need on the job, and gives them the flexibility to:

- Schedule sessions matching their language lessons and level
- Sign up for sessions that fit home and work commitments
- Eliminate travel times and costs

Two tutoring options are available: personalized one-on-one sessions that align with employees' individual goals, and small group sessions that bring together learners at the same lesson level.

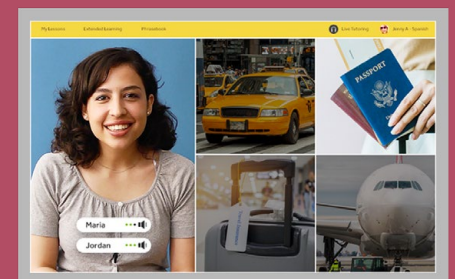

Experienced tutors focus on learners

Employees are encouraged to fully participate by friendly tutors well prepared to converse with global learners.

- Rosetta Stone tutors are native speakers of the languages they teach
- Minimum requirements include a 4-year degree, two years relevant postgraduate professional experience, and 80 hours of training in the first year
- Tutors must pass language immersion training that tests and validates their skills
- Quarterly assessments rate tutors on performance and adherence to standards
- Our tutors have delivered more than 140,000 language training sessions in the past year alone

What's next

Go to rosettastone.com/business to learn more about the impact language training has on productivity, retention, and global expansion. Or schedule a consultation with one of our solutions experts to chat about your specific language training needs.

Rosetta
Stone

Business