Professional development: Encouraging a global outlook

Education

Building language skills extends educators' worldview and empathy.

Providing world language study as professional development is an effective strategy for integrating a global outlook into education. Rosetta Stone Education offers solutions that enable educators to learn a new language and expand their worldview.

By increasing their language skills educators are better equipped to engage with more people in our multilingual society—and to encourage students to do the same.

Finding time for professional development can be daunting for teachers—their school time is typically jam-packed. Being able to learn anytime, anywhere is key for fitting in longer-term learning like language acquisition.

Online instruction increases learner access and flexibility.

Online language learning focused on professional development.

Online program implementations can address diverse language needs and provide appropriate rigor to meet individual learners based on competency. Teachers are challenged individually at just the right level—ensuring efficient learning. Instead of a rigid one-size-fits-all curriculum that requires face-to-face traditional classes, learning happens whenever and wherever the teacher chooses and can be tailored to their individual needs.

Through a combination of live tutoring and speech-recognition technology that delivers instant speech feedback, teachers can build their communication skills and speaking confidence in the most effective and timesaving way possible.

Educators today face challenges and have opportunities unique to our expansive global society and its evolving technologies. Every day educators carry the torch to ensure students are prepared to thrive in the world in which they'll live, work, and ideally succeed. Preparing teachers with the skills they need to do that is critical for the future success of the students they serve.

"The Rosetta Stone program increases oral confidence in learners by providing opportunities to practice listening to their own pronunciation and lowering their affective filter."
