Rosetta Stone® Advantage: Types of Tests

Placement Test

The Placement Test determines learners' current levels in a given language at the beginning of training. The test is a series of questions that learners must answer in a limited amount of time. At the end of the test, the score determines the learners' levels. The test consists of 64 questions, is adaptive, and takes 20-45 minutes to complete.

In creating classes, administrators can set the following parameters for the Placement Test:

- Allow or deny access to Placement Test
- Make the Placement Test mandatory for all learners
- Allow learners to choose another proficiency level of study than the one selected from the Placement Test results

Progress Test

The Progress Test allows learners to see the progress they have made after using Rosetta Stone Advantage. We recommend taking this test at the end of training. The Progress Test can only be taken if the Placement Test has also been taken. The test consists of 64 questions, is adaptive, and takes 20-45 minutes to complete.

In creating classes, administrators can set the following parameters for the Placement Test:

- Deny or allow access to the Progress Test
- Make the Progress Test always available
- Define availability of up to 2 Progress Tests during the year based on time worked or defined date for each test

Achievement Test

The Achievement Test offers a series of questions specifically designed to help learners prepare to take certification tests. Thanks to a system that is aligned with official standards, learners can use this test to see whether or not they are ready for the certification tests. The test consists of 120 questions and takes 60-90 minutes to complete.

In creating classes, administrators can set the following parameters for the Achievement Test:

- Deny or allow access to the Achievement Test
- Define availability of up to 2 Achievement Tests during the year based on time worked or defined date for each test

*CEFR is an international standard used to describe the language ability of foreign language learners around the world