Task 6: Comprehension Read the story. Then answer the questions. Circle the correct answers.

Last month, I traveled to China to photograph rice farmers. My photos will be sent to my manager in the United States, and he'll print them in the newspaper. The farm I visited is small, and the farmers there work very hard. They get up at sunrise, work until twelve p.m., and then take a short break for lunch before they start working again. They have some pigs and goats, but their main business is growing rice. They do not have any tractors or bulldozers. They do everything by hand or with the help of a donkey. It was very interesting to see how they live and work. I love to travel!
